

ABSTRACT

A monitoring system including a video viewer sited to view an area of interest characterized by its proximity to, and/or location with respect to, at least one visual stimulus, a generator of electrical signals representing video images of the area at different times, processor for processing the signals to determine a behavior pattern of people traversing said area and a response indicator utilizing the behavior pattern to provide an indication of a response by said people to said visual stimulus.